SOCIAL

RIASEC is an acronym that represents the six primary types of personalities or vocational interests identified by psychologist John Holland. The model is often used in career counseling and guidance to help individuals understand their preferences and make informed decisions about their careers. Each letter in the acronym corresponds to a specific personality or interest type:

1. Realistic (R)
 2. Investigative (I)
 3. Artistic (A)
 4. Social (S)
 5. Enterprising (E)
 6. Conventional (C)

Key characteristics associated with a Social personality in the RIASEC model:

- 1.Team Player: They thrive in team environments and value collaboration. Working with others to achieve common goals is satisfying for individuals with a Social personality.
 - 2.Communication Skills: Effective communication is a strength of those with a Social personality. They may excel in roles that involve public speaking, counseling, teaching, or facilitating group discussions.
 - 3.Listening Skills: They are often good listeners, which contributes to their ability to understand others' perspectives and provide support.
 - 4.Teaching and Mentoring: Social individuals often find satisfaction in roles that involve teaching, mentoring, or guiding others. They may enjoy helping individuals learn and develop their skills.
